

Invitation to Lunch Seminar

Lecture by Kaelyn J. Fogelman, Ph.D.

Dr Kaelyn Fogelman is a postdoctoral research fellow at Auburn University's School of Fisheries, Aquaculture, and Aquatic Sciences in Alabama, USA. Her research focuses on the ecology of aquatic molluscs and crustaceans, with an emphasis on food webs and physiology. Much of her work involves the conservation of imperilled fauna, invasive species control and how aquatic invertebrates will be impacted by our changing climate.

Lecture

Ecophysiology for aquatic invertebrate conservation

Place

MEVPIS, Na Valše 207, Vodňany /lecture hall/

Date

Wednesday, November 9, 2022, 13:10 – 13:50

Details

Lunch sandwich for registered participants
/after lecture/

The lecture will be conducted in hybrid format

The lecture link will be available here

Please confirm your physical participation here by November 8, 2022

Free admission. Lecture hall capacity max. 30 persons.